Comments:	that I would receive wholesale pricing for the printing that Travelhost, Inc. would do on the magazine. It recently came to my attention, that the pricing is way above any wholesale pricing and that Travelhost, Inc. has built in marketing expense for approximately $1850, per month that I was never made aware of. In addition, I believe Travelhost Inc. is operating as a franchise and not a distributorship and therefore in violation of the franchise laws. Based upon my research, I have been overcharged over $300,000, in comparison to what bona-fide wholesale pricing actually is. In addition, the marketing charge which I never was aware of would amount to another overcharge of $140,000. Based upon the information I received and which I believe to be reliable, these overcharges constitute unfair and deceptive practices pursuant to FTC rules and pursuant to the consumer protection acts of many states including Texas and Tennessee. I believe Travelhost Inc. is not a distributorship at all, but rather a franchise operation fully subject to applicable federal and state franchise regulation. I have never received any franchise disclosure document required by applicable law.Additional information regarding other Associate Publishers that have had numerous problems has been documented on the www.publishersadvocate.info. When I purchased a Travelhost distributorship there were approximately 120 Associate Publishers in the network and as of this date, there are approximately 70 Associate Publishers left in the United States. The failure rate for people purchasing these distributorships is about 90%. Travelhost Inc. also made claims that with the help of their marketing, you could sell Regional & National advertising. This is also proved to be quite untrue because of the lack of publishing markets. In addition, Travelhost Inc. has also furnished lists of markets provided to Associate Publishers which were incomplete and they did not give accurate figures of the number of magazines published. I do not stand alone in facing pro
